BELL GARDENS, CA

Bell Gardens is a well-established residential community located in Southeast Los Angeles County within the Gateway Cities region, benefiting from a central location between Downtown Los Angeles, Long Beach, and Orange County. The city offers convenient access to major transportation corridors including Interstate 710, Interstate 5, and Interstate 605, providing connectivity to many of Southern California's largest employment centers. Home to approximately 39,000 residents, Bell Gardens is characterized by high population density, established neighborhoods, and a strong renter base that supports consistent housing demand. The city is served by the Montebello Unified School District and is located near several colleges and universities, providing residents access to educational opportunities throughout the greater Los Angeles area.

The broader Gateway Cities submarket continues to experience strong residential demand due to its central location, established infrastructure, and relative affordability compared with many surrounding Los Angeles County communities. Bell Gardens benefits from proximity to Downtown Los Angeles, major industrial and logistics employment corridors, regional healthcare providers, and retail destinations throughout Southeast Los Angeles County. Limited available land and constrained new housing development create barriers to new supply, while the city's proximity to major employment centers supports a consistent renter pool. These fundamentals, combined with strong regional connectivity and an established residential base, continue to support long-term multifamily demand throughout the Bell Gardens market.
